

GAIA NEWS

Earth Day is coming! Earth Day, April 22nd, is a great day to reflect on the fact that every single thing we have; our clothes, our food, our toys and each other—comes from the Earth! I'm going to be at Border's Books & Music in Ithaca, NY on Earth Day. I will also be at an exciting event-Earth Day New York-in Grand Central Station, NYC. I am going to be in a lot of places in April & May. There is a list of upcoming events on our site and our blog. Hope to see you there! Lee Welles

The Meatrix is a GREAT web cartoon that spoofs the movie The Matrix and tells the real story of factory farming. It was downloaded over 5 million times in 2005 and won a prestigious Webby Award. The long awaited, Meatrix 2 is finally here! You can watch the continuing adventures of Moophius, Leo & Chickety and learn more about what you can do by clicking the icons above.

Gaia Girls goes to School

Gaia Girls has been visiting a number of schools in the region! The children have been mesmerized by the readings and learn a lot from the presentations. If you would like to have Lee visit your school, download this flyer.

The Puzzle Games are Online!

Did you notice the hidden codes in the Enter the Earth illustrations? Well, go look and then go to the Gaia Girls website! Solve three puzzles and get a prize: desktop backgrounds and a deleted scene from Enter the Earth!

Watch the Interview-Hear the Song!

Did you know there is a song, Enter the Earth? There is, and it is a fantastic, sing-a-long kind of tune by Brooke Pevear. You can hear a sample on the blog. Also new on the blog; the WETM T.V. interview with Lee Welles.
